I, Gerald Kielpinski, citizen of the USA, wholeheartedly object to the proposed settlement against microsoft, believing it to be far too soft, and in some cases just plain ludicrous.

This case's magnitude can be likened to allowing one company to control the automobile industry. Imagine the cars we would be driving if that were the case. The only reason Microsoft recently unveiled an operating system that doesn't crash is due to the miniscule competition that probably won't last long with settlements such as this...
